Greetings to all Acurileans, Information Professionals, Exhibitors, and Friends:

Dear ACURIL Members, Colleagues, Exhibitors, and Friends,

It is with great joy and deep commitment that I send you a warm greeting in my role as President of the Caribbean University, Research, and Institutional Libraries Association (ACURIL) 2025–2026.

It is a true privilege and honor to invite you to reunite in Puerto Rico during our 55th Annual ACURIL Conference, to be held from June 7 to 11, 2026, at the historic and welcoming Caribe Hilton Hotel in San Juan.

This gathering, which transcends borders, will be a unique opportunity to strengthen connections, share experiences, and collectively envision the future of our libraries, archives, and museums. Under the central theme: “Libraries, Archives, and Museums on the Frontline: Advocacy, Innovation, and Sustainability,” we will reflect on the transformative role of our institutions as engines of social development, guardians of cultural memory, and champions of equitable access to knowledge. During our discussions, we will highlight how Caribbean libraries, archives, and museums drive social development and community growth; how, with vision and purpose, they shape the future; how innovation in new services transforms these institutions into vibrant community hubs; and how we move from collections to connections, adapting creatively and sustainably to the challenges of today and tomorrow.

The Puerto Rico Local Organizing Committee is already working enthusiastically to provide us with an unforgettable ACURIL experience, full of learning, innovation, and opportunities for collaboration.

I invite you to be part of this collective journey, where every voice matters and every experience enriches. It will be an honor to welcome you to San Juan and share moments that will undoubtedly mark the history of our professional community.

With warm regards and hope,

Message from the LOC Chair of the ACURIL 2026 Local Organizing Committee

As Conference Coordinator, and on behalf of the Local Organizing Committee, it is my pleasure to extend a warm greeting and heartfelt welcome to the 55th ACURIL Conference, to be held from June 7 to 11, 2026, on our beloved island of Puerto Rico. This edition takes place under the leadership of our esteemed President, professor Loyda Nieves Ayala.

This year, we gather under the inspiring theme, “Libraries, Archives, and Museums on the Frontline: Advocacy, Innovation and Sustainability”, which highlights the essential and transformative role of our institutions as pillars of social development, cultural preservation, and equitable access to knowledge.

Throughout the conference, we will explore how libraries, archives and museums in the Caribbean can:

1. Drive social and community development through advocacy actions that create real impact in our institutions.
2. Lead with purpose, vision, and commitment toward a more just and sustainable future.
3. Transform their services to become inclusive, dynamic, and community-centered spaces.
4. Innovate with creativity and sustainability, strengthening meaningful connections beyond collections.

From the Local Organizing Committee, we are working with great enthusiasm to make this gathering a space for inspiration, learning, and collaboration. We trust that each participant will find valuable opportunities to exchange experiences, share best practices, and build alliances that reinforce our commitment to education, culture, and sustainable development in the region.

It is a true honor to host this Conference in Puerto Rico. We hope your stay will be as enriching as it is enjoyable, and that this collective experience will leave you with lasting and unforgettable memories.

DEDICATIONS

School librarians of Puerto Rico

School libraries in Puerto Rico have played a significant role in the education and cultural development of students since their inception in the 19th century. Despite the contemporary challenges they face, school libraries remain a vital resource for the advancement of any nation. Furthermore, libraries would not fulfill their potential without their most essential asset: the librarians.

School librarians in Puerto Rico and the Caribbean are integral to the academic and personal development of students. Their contributions extend beyond mere collection management; they act as agents of change, promoting literacy, inclusivity, and critical thinking in an increasingly complex world. They play a crucial role in the current educational landscape of Puerto Rico, serving as facilitators of learning by fostering the development of essential skills in students. They assist students in cultivating critical research, reading, and analytical skills, which are indispensable in today's educational environment. By collaborating with educators to integrate resources and activities into the curriculum, librarians align library services with the educational needs of each class.

Librarians are key players in facilitating access to resources, encompassing both digital media and traditional formats. They encourage access to a diverse range of literary materials, ensuring that all students can engage with content that aligns with their interests and needs. As advocates for literacy, they establish reading programs and events. They also promote information literacy, equipping students with the skills to discern credible sources of information—an essential competency in an era characterized by information overload. Moreover, they often provide social and emotional support by creating safe spaces for students. They are champions of inclusion and diversity, serving as vital connections to the community.

For these reasons and many others, this year's conference is dedicated to them. Without their invaluable contributions, we would not be here today.

Pura Belpré (1899-1982)

Acuril LV honors Pura Belpré:

Pura Belpré (1899-1982) was a librarian, author, and storyteller who wrote and re-interpreted Puerto Rican folk tales. In 1920, Belpré interrupted her studies at the University of Puerto Rico in Río Piedras to attend her sister's wedding in New York City, where she was recruited by a public library effort to hire young women from ethnically diverse backgrounds. This first job led to a remarkable career that had Belpré travel the city, from the Bronx to the Lower East Side, telling stories in both English and Spanish, something that had not been done before. Belpré broke the barriers that led the Spanish speaking community to believe the library was "only English."

In 1925 she began her formal studies in the Library School of the New York Public Library. In 1929, due to the increasing numbers of Puerto Ricans settling in southwest Harlem, Belpré was transferred to a branch of the NYPL at 115th Street. She quickly became an active advocate for the Spanish-speaking community by instituting bilingual story hours, buying Spanish language books, and implementing programs based on traditional holidays. Through Belpré's work, the 115th Street branch became an important cultural center for the Latino residents of New York. Belpré continued these efforts at the 110th street (or Aguilar) branch.

Belpré's library career was tied to her literary career. The first story she wrote and published was "Pérez and Martina", a love story between a cockroach and a mouse. Belpré also collected many other folktales from Puerto Rico, translated them into English and had them published as children's literature.

Belpré wrote, among other books, the first major Juan Bobo story published in the United States, "Juan Bobo and the Queen's Necklace: A Puerto Rican Folk Tale" (1962).

The Pura Belpré Award was established in 1996 as an homage to Pure Belpré. It is a children's book award, presented annually, to Latinx writers and illustrators whose works best portray, affirm, and celebrate the Latino cultural experience in outstanding works of literature for children and youth. The Pura Belpré Award is co-sponsored by REFORMA: the National Association to Promote Library and Information Services to Latinos and the Spanish-Speaking and the Association for Library Service to Children (ALSC), a division of the American Library Association (ALA).

Anthem of ACURIL

Music: Manuel Rueda

Lyrics: Mariano Lebrón

ACURIL is a light which can brighten
the way to be trod by mankind
For in books resides all the knowledge
And the love and the power he must find

ACURIL is a haven of wisdom
It's a spring feeding rivers of truth
Making barren souls more productive
Spreading comfort and lessening abuse

ACURIL, ACURIL
I sing with passion this opening verse
You are large garden of the Caribbean
Whose rose is the immortal book.

SUBTHEMES ACURIL 2026 Puerto Rico CONFERENCE:

The ACURIL 2026 Puerto Rico Scientific Committee invites proposals for paper, workshop, and poster presentations which explore the following Sub-themes:

SUBTHEME No. 1: ADVOCACY IN ACTION: CARIBBEAN LIBRARIES, ARCHIVES, AND MUSEUMS DRIVING SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT AND COMMUNITY GROWTH

Caribbean libraries, archives, and museums (LAM) have long been pillars of learning, culture, and connection, but they are increasingly stepping into the role of advocates for social development and community growth. By addressing the unique challenges faced by the region, such as economic disparity, limited access to education and technology, and climate vulnerabilities, Caribbean LAM are actively transforming lives and fostering sustainable development.

How are Caribbean libraries, archives, and museums addressing the unique challenges of the region to promote social development, community growth, and sustainability? This question allows you to:

1. Identify concrete actions related to advocacy and social transformation.
2. Evaluate their commitment to sustainable development and equity.
3. Explore how LAMs are responding to local needs with innovative solutions.
4. Measure their impact on the lives of the communities they serve.

SUBTHEME No. 2: CARIBBEAN LIBRARIES, ARCHIVES & MUSEUMS: SHAPING THE FUTURE WITH PURPOSE, EMPOWERING COMMUNITIES, BUILDING RESILIENCE

LAM have always been beacons of knowledge, culture and innovation. However, in today's rapidly evolving world, they are more than just repositories for books - they are dynamic institutions shaping the future with purpose. By embracing technology, fostering community development, and addressing global challenges, LAM are charting a path toward a brighter, more equitable future.

How are the libraries, archives, and museums in your community promoting social development, equity, and civic engagement through their programs, services, and strategic partnerships? This question allows you to:

1. Identify specific initiatives (educational, cultural, technological, etc.).
2. Evaluate the institutions' inclusive and participatory approach.
3. Explore the use of technology and their response to local and global challenges.
4. Measure their impact on the community.

SUBTHEME No. 3: NEW SERVICES IN LIBRARIES, ARCHIVES & MUSEUMS: TRANSFORMING COMMUNITY HUBS

LAMs have always been cornerstones of education, discovery and community engagement. In the modern era, they are evolving to meet the dynamic needs of their patrons by introducing innovative new services. These additions not only keep LAMs relevant in the digital age, but also position them as vibrant hubs of creativity, learning, and support.

How are libraries, archives, and museums in your community evolving to meet the changing needs of their users through the implementation of innovative services that promote creativity, learning, and community engagement? This question allows you to:

1. Explore the incorporation of digital technologies and modern services.
2. Identify initiatives that foster creativity and active learning.
3. Evaluate the role of LAM as dynamic community centers.
4. Measure their relevance in today's context and their capacity to adapt.

SUBTHEME No. 4: FROM COLLECTIONS TO CONNECTIONS: CARIBBEAN LIBRARIES, ARCHIVES & MUSEUMS ADAPTING FOR DEVELOPMENT AND SUSTAINABILITY

Traditionally, libraries have been viewed as spaces for housing books and preserving knowledge. However, in the Caribbean, libraries are undergoing a significant transformation - shifting from being collection-focused to becoming connection-oriented hubs of development and sustainability. By addressing the unique challenges and opportunities within the region, Caribbean libraries are evolving to support lifelong learning, social progress, and environmental resilience.

How are LAMs in your community shifting from a collection-focused model to a connection-oriented approach, supporting lifelong learning, social progress, and environmental resilience? This question allows you to:

1. Identify changes in institutional mission and vision.
2. Evaluate the implementation of programs that promote sustainable development.
3. Explore how libraries are adapting to regional challenges (education, technology, environment).
4. Measure their impact on the community from a holistic perspective.
